FISCAL IMPACT STATEMENT

TO: The Board of Trustees
FROM: Managing Director of Finance David A. Franklin
DATE: August 31, 2018
SUBJECT: UDC Tuition Rate Increase for AY2019-2020

Conclusion

In conclusion, the tuition rate increase for AY 2019-2020 is expected to result in a positive fiscal impact to the University of the District of Columbia's revenue stream assuming level FTE student enrollment due to the increased tuition charges paid by resident and non-resident students attending the University.

Background

By Resolution 2017-17, the Board of Trustees designated the Higher Education Price Index (HEPI) as the benchmark for use in setting annual tuition rates. The most recent HEPI data show that inflation for colleges and universities was 3.7% for FY2017, more than doubling the 1.8% rate reported for FY2016. There are eight cost factors that contribute to the HEPI regression calculation: faculty salaries, administrative salaries, clerical salaries, service employee salaries, fringe benefits, miscellaneous services, supplies and materials, and utilities. For FY2017, costs rose in seven of the eight categories tracked by HEPI, the only exception being a one-half percentage point decline in the cost of supplies and materials; a year ago, costs rose in six of the eight categories, the two exceptions being utilities and supplies and materials.

Relying on a HEPI plus 1% formula, the proposed tuition rate increase would result in a 4.7% increase over AY 2018-2019 tuition rates with an estimated increase in tuition revenue of $1,357,286. In keeping with the spirit of the Board of Trustees resolution to increase tuition gradually, the administration is providing an option of 2.5% increase with an estimated tuition revenue increase of $765,183. The projected increases in tuition rates will have a positive impact on tuition revenue for the Academic Year 2019-2020 assuming flat enrollment projections.

Financial Impact

Projections indicate that the increase in tuition rates would lead to an increase in tuition revenue to the University. Per the HEPI report operation cost have increase in 7 of the 8 major expense categories for university. The University should expect to have the same increase in operating cost as predicted in the report. This request has been approved based on information provided. There are no anticipated risks at this time.

Risk Assumptions	Impacts
Higher tuition rates may negatively impact enrollment	Research indicates low to moderate fiscal impact on the correlation of tuition increase and decline in enrollment and retention.
