Who Can Utilize Root Psychology?

Evaluation outcomes show that Root Psychology: A Diverse Assessment enhances and strengthens psychology/social science related courses and/or curriculums for undergraduate students in the areas of psychology, nursing, rehabilitation, counseling, and social workers.

It is also used as an empowerment tool in organizations and corporations “Human Resources and Employee Assistance Programs” that are committed to improve racial unrest and communication relations through the identification of targeted goals and objectives in order to better respect cultural traditions and improve the human condition.
Root Psychology

Lecture Series

Root Psychology: A Diverse Assessment is based on The Ancestral Healing Recovery Model's (TAHRM) empirical reports, evaluations and evidence created and developed by Orisade Awodola known as Professor “A” has spent more than 20 years on the development of this ground-breaking and cutting-edge culture-oriented psychology; a mental, physical, and spiritual model which reviews generational experiences of the Atlantic Slave Trade, Holocaust, and Trail of Tears that explains the modification of the human being DNA and the cellular structure of its descendants.

Root Psychology contrasts early century theories, but is not limited to out-of-date propositions by early psychologists. It is thought-provoking based on facts to provide empowerment, enhance educational and personal goals.

Who AM I? What is the purpose of Root Psychology?

Root Psychology is “a missing link” in humanity. The purpose is to overall advance the field of psychology as a social science through a culture oriented empowerment program which provides individuals with a motivating framework and opportunity to identify their life’s purpose.
